Only classifications with age restrictions have age identifiers (15+ or R18+) with the classification letter. The age identifiers are a legal requirement and must be included on all signage and advertising.

Age restrictions on viewing films

The G, PG and M classifications are advisory only and there are no legal age restrictions regarding who can watch these films.

MA15+ and R18+ are legally restricted classifications. Films classified MA15+ can only be screened to people aged 15 years or older, unless they are accompanied by their parent or guardian, or in Queensland, an adult. Films classified R18+ can only be screened to adults aged 18 years and over (or children under 2 in Queensland).

Advertising an unclassified film

Unclassified films can be advertised prior to classification.

- The letters CTC can be used for small print advertising and session time displays to indicate a film is to be classified;
- Generally other advertising needs the advertising message

Advertising - screening trailers with feature films

Advertising prior to classification

Unclassified films and computer games can be assessed for their likely classification by an Authorised Advertising Assessor or by the Classification Board before they are classified. Advertising an unclassified film or computer game can only occur when the advertising has been assessed to be at the same classification level as the feature film, or with feature films of a higher classification. This means:
If a film or computer game is assessed | You can show trailers for the film or computer game with films classified
with a likely classification of G | R 18+, MA 15+, M, PG and G with a likely classification of PG | R 18+, MA 15+, M, and PG with a likely classification of M | R 18+, MA 15+ and M with a likely classification of MA 15+ | R 18+ and MA 15+
with a likely classification of R 18+ | R 18+

A trailer for an unclassified film or computer game which can be advertised must screen the advertising message tag before the trailer.

Once a film is classified, the advertising message must be replaced with the classification tag within 7 days of notification of the film’s classification to the distributor.

Advertising after classification

Cinemas can only show trailers for films or computer games with the same or lower classification as the feature film. This means:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If the feature film is classified</th>
<th>You can show trailers for films or computer games classified</th>
</tr>
</thead>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A trailer for a classified film must screen a classification tag before the trailer.

Advertising - Loop trailers in foyers

Advertising prior to classification

Trailers for unclassified films or computer games screened in a cinema foyer must have the advertising message. The advertising message does not need to be updated after the film is classified.

Advertising after classification

Trailers for classified films or computer games screened in a cinema foyer need to display the classification marking or the advertising message. There are restrictions on screening trailers for MA 15+ and R 18+ films in a public place in the Australian Capital Territory, Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia and Northern Territory.

Advertising - Print

Advertising prior to classification

Standees, banners, display bins, window cling and print advertising over 300 cm² are not required to display the advertising message.

Print advertising less than 75 cm² (eg newspapers ads, small flyers) the letters CTC must be in the lower left corner and at least 5mm high.

Print advertising between 75 cm² and 300 cm² must display the advertising message.

Print advertising 300 cm² and over may display the advertising message.

Once a film is classified, the advertising message should be replaced with the classification marking within 7 days of notification of the film’s classification (except for posters or where the print deadline has passed).

Advertising after classification

Standees, banners, display bins, window cling and any advertising over 25,000 cm² are not required to display the classification markings.
Print advertising less than 75 cm² must display the classification symbol for the film at least 5mm high and in the lower left corner.

Print advertising between 75 cm² and 25,000 cm² must display the combination box in the lower left corner.

Posters do not have to be updated if they display the advertising message.

Advertising - session times

Advertising prior to classification
Printed, backlit or electronic session times should include the letters CTC after the film title.

Advertising after classification
Printed, backlit or electronic session times must display after the film title:

- if title is less than 3 mm high - classification character, e.g. M, in at least the same height as the title.
- if title is 3mm or larger - classification character e.g. M, symbol Ⓟ, square or rectangle in at least the same height as the title.

Printed session times should include consumer advice for the films. A legend explaining what CTC and the classifications mean must be included.

Advertising – website

Film advertising and session times on websites also need to display the advertising message or classification markings and a classification legend.

Classification approved notice

A notice explaining what each of the classifications mean must be displayed in a prominent place where films are being screened.
